The Way of the WORLD

The South African War.

The more rigidly-enforced press censorship of war news from South Africa again veils that portion of the globe in darkness. Many rumors float in the air, but little real news is known. Peace rumors are most persistent, and it is said that Dr. Leyds, the Transvaal Agent, is at the Dutch Embassy, London.—The Boers are still fighting in many isolated points. A train from Cape Town was held up near Beaufort West, and burned. Three British were killed and eighteen wounded. Another British force of 300 men was attacked by Kritzinger's commando. The horses stampeded, and Grabbe fell back on Mortimer.—The concentration camps now contain 110,000 prisoners, being 85,410 whites and 23,489 colored. There were 777 deaths among the whites in the camps, including 775 children. The colored persons had five deaths only.—Several Boer prisoners at Bermuda have escaped by swimming, but have been re-captured.—A detachment of mounted troops occupying Beersdorp was forced to evacuate by a superior force of Boers. The detachment fought their way out for sixteen miles, losing ten in killed and wounded.—Bad blood was caused among the Boer prisoners at St. Helena by a number of these taking the oath of allegiance. Fighting resulted, which necessitated the separation of the two factions.—A Boer commando, with women and children, has entered Portuguese territory and will be disarmed.—32,000 Boers have been made prisoners, or have surrendered, since the beginning of the war until July 1st.

British Briefs.

The King has requested Parliament to make a grant of $500,000 to Lord Roberts for his services in South Africa.

The British Agent for Egypt has been created a peer, and is now known as Lord Cromer. He has well earned his promotion.

The King has presented medals to 3,000 yeomanry. Thirty-two non-commissioned officers and men refused to attend, claiming their pay was in arrears and their families starving.

It is proposed to change the present title of the King to "Edward the Seventh, by the grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and of British Dominions beyond the Sea; King, Defender of the Faith, and Emperor of India."

Lord Mountstephen has given $200,000 to augment the salaries of the Church of Scotland ministers in Aberdeenshire and Banffshire.

The Harvest in Canada.

An excellent harvest yield is expected throughout Canada. The wheat yield in Manitoba and the North-West Territories is estimated at from 55 to 65 million bushels. Grave fears are entertained that not enough laborers can be secured to harvest it.

Animal and Human Consumption.

At the Berlin Tuberculosis Congress of Scientists, Dr. Koch stated that he believed the animal species of tuberculosis to differ essentially from the human kind, and that the former could not be transferred to man. Other scientists are divided in their opinion of this view.

A Horrible Death.

An explosion of petroleum on board the American schooner, Louise Adelaide, in the Stockholm harbor, resulted in the death of Capt. Orr, ten men and the crew, and four customs officials. The explosion set the boat on fire and the blazing oil enveloped the vessel. Two of the crew were saved.

Steel Workers' Strike.

The strike of the steel workers, at Pittsburg, looks threatening. The company is seeking an injunction against the strikers from interfering in any manner with the men now at work, while the strikers claim that the company is anxious to bring about a conflict in order to claim the aid of the sheriff and the military.

The Fire Fiend.

MacLaren's Timber Limit, in the Gatineau District, is on fire, and the flames are spreading.—Quebec Crown Timber Agents assert that the recent fire in the Temiskaming District caused a damage of at least two million dollars.—Glacie Bay, C. B., has had a serious fire.—Davenport, Iowa, had a disastrous fire consuming from twenty to thirty blocks of houses and sawmills. The loss is $700,000. Many people barely escaped with their lives.—Fire at Laprairie, Quebec, destroyed twenty-six dwellings, and a number of business establishments.—The Canada Paper Co's mill, at Windsor Mills, was burned. Damage $200,000.—A forest fire in Sweden has assumed such gigantic proportions that 3,000 troops have been ordered out to aid in subduing the flames.

Casualties.

A little girl was drowned at Owen Sound.—A farmer's wife near Marance Creek was fatally injured by a vicious horse.—A dentist and a young lady of Compton, Que., were drowned by their boat upsetting.—A fireman was run over by a train at Little York, having both of his legs cut off.—A section foreman was run over and killed by a G.T.R. train near Cornwall.—The Rev. A. B. Mackay was drowned at Seven Islands.—A 14-year-old boy was drowned at Stony Lake.—A small boy was run over and fatally injured at Niagara.—A little boy playing in a new structure, Toronto, had a heavy stone fall upon him, inflicting injuries from which he died.—A young woman at Harrowsmith was killed by a sawing machine.—Mrs. J. McCormack, of Kingston township, was killed by an eastbound G.T.R. train by stepping in front of it, trying to avoid a westbound train.—A young man of 20 was fatally injured by a Wabash construction train near St. Thomas.—A German lad was drowned while bathing in Ottawa River.—A farmer of Huron county, while shingling a roof, fell to the ground, receiving injuries from which he died.—A Manitoba farmer died of injuries received in a recent cyclone.

Miscellaneous.

Mrs. Carrie Nulton has been sentenced to another 50 days in jail at Topeka, Kansas.

A party of Americans, with a boat loaded with whiskey, were captured near the Manitou Indian Reserve. Ralay River.

Ottawa lumbermen will invite the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall to a trip down the Ottawa Rapids on a crib of square timber.

Hallstones weighing three pounds are reported to have fallen in a Russian district. Three men and much live stock, were killed, and the crops greatly damaged.

The price of coal at Ottawa: was dropped from $7 to $5.25 per ton.

Winnipeg has an offer from Mr. Andrew Carnegie of $100,000 for a free public library.

Two supposed cases of bubonic plague were found on a steamer which arrived at Plymouth from Sydney.

The Late Mrs. Kruger, Wife of Ex-President Kruger.

Two parties of English tourists and their guides lost their lives by falling over precipices. One party was ascending the Matterhorn, the other Mount Cervino.

Turkey refuses to allow a Greek squadron to visit some of her Asiatic ports.

All tariff duties between Porto Rico and the United States have been abolished.

Twenty thousand Baptist Young People's Union delegates have assembled at Chicago for a convention.

A New York dock company, with a capital of twenty million dollars, will make improvements and greatly enlarge the present wharves of that metropolis.

Natural gas was struck at Whitby, Ont. in a well drilled in the park.

Geo. Kennan, the American author, has been expelled from Russia because he has published too much of Russia's affairs and prisoners.

The Mad Mullah was routed in a fight with the British, losing seventy killed.

Venice is gradually but surely sinking in the mud, and will ultimately disappear below the waters of the Adriatic Sea.

Heavy earthquakes were experienced in some sections of Nevada.

A Montreal girl out of employment starved to death at New York, too proud to ask assistance.

DEATH OF MRS. KRUGER

Mrs. Kruger, wife of former President Kruger, of the South African Republic, died on July 20th, of pneumonia, after an illness of three days. She was 67 years old.

"Owing to the Sunday telegraph hours in Holland," says a despatch to the Daily Mail, from Hilversum, "Mr. Kruger was not informed of his wife's death until the evening. The news was broken to him by Dr. Heymans and Secretary Boeschoten. Mr. Kruger, who had just returned from Hilversum church, burst into tears, and asked to be left alone.

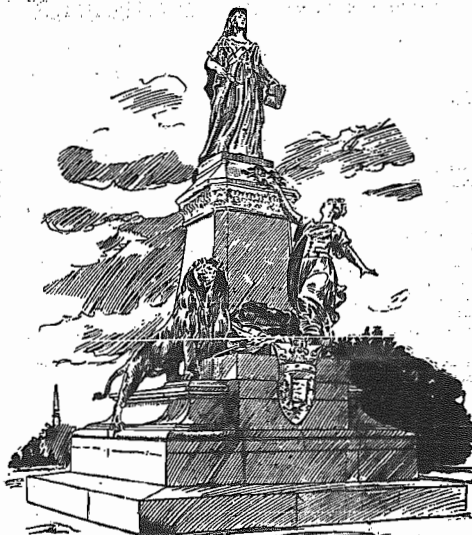

"He exclaimed, 'She was a good wife. We quarreled only once, and that was six months after we were married.' He prayed for a long time, and is now calmly sleeping, his Bible by his bed.

"The Transvaal and Orange Free State flags flying above the white walls were draped and half-masted. Shortly before the news came a crowd of country girls had been singing a folk song outside the villa."

WATCH YOURSELF.

What a subtle kind of headache we give others by simply not being at our best and highest, when they have to make allowance for us, when the dark side is uppermost in our minds, and we take their sunlight and courage away, by even our unspoken thoughts, our atmosphere of heaviness! Oh, to stand always and eternally for sunlight and life and cheer.

A CANADIAN STATUE OF THE LATE QUEEN.

The new statue of Her late Majesty, Queen Victoria executed by the Canadian sculptor, Hebert, caps a pretty little knoll to the west of the main building on Parliament Hill, Ottawa, which, in turn, commands a magnificent view of the Chaudiere Falls and the Ottawa River for five or six miles up that stream. The figure of the Queen is draped, and will so remain until it is formally unveiled. But enough was seen of it while in process of erection to call forth very general admiration. The British Hon. Sec.,

the allegorical figure which ornaments the base are both of them worked out with good effect, and the only criticism heard is in regard to the pedestal, which does not meet with universal approval. It is understood that the Minister of Public Works proposes taking the advice of Mr. Hebert himself on this point. It is not as massive as some think is desirable to correspond with the statuary. It seems to be understood that the unveiling will take place during the visit to the capital of His Royal Highness, the Duke of Cornwall and York.

Heroes of the Cross.

DAVID LIVINGSTONE.

Concluded.

THE Zambesi Expedition, of which Livingstone thus became commander, sailed from Liverpool in H. M. S. Pearl, on March 10th, 1858, and reached the mouth of the Zambesi on May 14th, and the party ascended the river from the Kongone mouth in a steam launch, the Ma-Robert, reaching Tetto on September 8th. The remainder of the year was spent in examining the river above Tetto, and especially the Kebrassa Rapids. Most of the year 1859 was spent in exploration, and much of the year 1860 was spent in Livingstone in fulfilling his promise to take such of the Makololo home as cared to go. In January, the next year, arrived Bishop Mackenzie and a party of missionaries, sent out by the Universities Mission, to establish a station on the Upper Shire. After exploring the River Rovuma for thirty miles in his new vessel, the Pioneer, Livingstone and the missionaries proceeded up the Shire to Chibwa, where the trade in slaves was rampant, desolating the country and paralyzing all effort. On July 16th, Livingstone, accompanied by several native carriers, started to show the Shire the country. Several bands of

and, after seeing the missionary party settled in the highlands of Magomero, to the south of Lake Shirwa, Livingstone spent from August to November in exploring Lake Nyassa. While the boat sailed up the west side of the lake to near the north end, the explorer marched along the shore. He returned more resolved than ever to do his utmost to root out of the civilized world to put down the desolating slave-trade. On Jan. 30th, 1862, at the Zambesi mouth, Livingstone welcomed his wife and the ladies of the mission, with whom were the sections of the Lady Nyassa, a river steamer, which Livingstone had built at his own expense, absorbing most of the profits of his book, and for which he never got any allowance. When the mission ladies reached the mouth of the Ruu tributary of the Shire, they were stunned to hear of the death of the Bishop and Mr. Burrup. This was a sad blow to Livingstone, seeming to have rendered all his efforts to establish a mission futile. A still greater loss to him was that of his wife, at Shupanga, on April 27th, 1862.

The Lady Nyassa was taken to the Rovuma. Up the river Livingstone managed to steam 155 miles, but further progress was arrested by rocks. Returning to the Zambesi in the beginning of 1863, he found that the desolation caused by the slave trade was more horrible and widespread than ever. It was clear that the Portuguese officials were themselves at the bottom of the traffic. Kirk and Charles Livingstone being compelled to return to England on account of their health, the doctor resolved once more to visit the lake, and proceeded some distance up the west side, and then north-west as far as the water shed that separates the Leangwa from the Shirwa, the latter of which runs into the lake. Meanwhile a runner was received from Earl Russell, recalling the expedition by the end of the year. In the end of April, 1864, Livingstone returned to Zanzibar in the Lady Nyassa, and on the 30th he set out with nine natives and four Europeans for Bombay, which was reached after an adventurous voyage of a month, and on July 23rd, Livingstone arrived at Bombay.

He was naturally disappointed with the results of the expedition, all its leading objects being thwarted through no blame of his. For the unfortunate disappointment of the four goats, a loss which he felt very keenly, and the medicine chest was stolen in January, 1868. Fever came upon him, and, for a time, was his almost constant companion; this, sary to maintain that Livingstone was exempt from the trying effects on the temper of African fever, or from the intolerance of lukewarmness which belongs to all exceptionally strong natures. Still, the results at the time, and especially those of the future, were great.

By Muchison, and his other staunch friends, Livingstone was warmly welcomed as ever. When Muchison proposed to him that he should go out again, although he seems to have had a desire to spend the remainder of his days at home, the prospect was too tempting to be rejected. He was appointed H. M. consul to central Africa without a salary, and the Government contributed only £500 to the expedition. The chief help came from private friends. During the latter part of the expedition the Government granted him £1,000, but that, when he learned of it, was devoted to his great undertaking. The Geographical Society contributed £500. The two main objects of the expedition were

The Suppression of Slavery

by means of civilizing influences, and the ascertainment of the watershed with the fearful dysentery and dreadful ulcers, and other ailments which subsequently attacked him and which he had no medicine to counteract, no doubt told fatally even on his iron frame. The Chamoeze was crossed on January 28th; and the south end of the Tanganyika reached on March 31st. Here, much to his vexation, he got into the company of Arab slave dealers, by whom his movements were hampered; but he succeeded in reaching Lake Mooro. After visiting Lake Mofova and the Lualaba, which he believed was the upper part of the Nile, he, on July 18th, discovered Lake Bangweilo. Proceeding up the west coast of Tanganyika, he reached Ujiji on March 14th, 1863.

"A Ruckle of Bones."

Supplies had been forwarded to him at Ujiji, but had been knavishly made off with by those to whose care they had been entrusted. Livingstone recrossed Tanganyika in July, and through the country of the Manyema, he tried in vain, for a whole year, to reach and cross the Lualaba, baffled partly by the natives, partly by the slave hunters, and partly by his long illnesses. It was, indeed, not till March 29th, 1871, that he succeeded in reaching the Lualaba, at the town of Nyangwe, where he stayed four months, vainly trying to get a canoe to take him across. It was here that a party of Arab slavers, without warning or provocation, assembled one day, when the market was busiest, and commenced shooting down poor women, hundreds being killed or drowned in trying to escape. Livingstone had "the impression that he was in Yembe, where Stanley provided Livingston with a liberal supply of goods and food, and which they left on March 15th, 1872, and after Livingston had waited wearily at Unyamwebe for five months, a troop of fifty-seven men and boys arrived, good and bad, with the following: whole, selected by Stanley himself. Thus attended, he started, on August 15th, for Lake Bangweilo, proceeding along the east side of Tanganyika. His old enemy, dysentery, soon found him out. In January, 1873, the party got among the endless spongy jungle on the east of Lake Bangweilo, Livingston's object being to go round by the south, and, away west, to find the "fountain." Vegetation days took place, and the journey became one constant wade below, under an almost Endless Pour of Rain from Above.

The doctor got worse and worse, but no idea of danger seems to have occurred to him. At last, in the middle of April, he had unwillingly to submit to be carried in a rude litter. On April 29th, Chitambo's village, on the Lualaba, in Ila, on the south shore of the lake, was reached. The last entry in the journal is of April 27th: "Knocked up quite, and remain—recovered—sent to buy much goods. We are on the banks of the Mollamo." On April 30th, then, with difficulty, wound up his watch, and early the morning of May 1st, the boys found "the great master," as they called him, kneeling by the side of his bed, dead. A faithful man preserved his body in the sun, and early in the morning, and wrapped it carefully up, carried it, and all his papers, instruments, and other things, across Africa, to Zanzibar. It was borne to England with all honor, and on April 18th, 1874, was deposited in Westminster Abbey, amid tokens of mourning and admiration such as England accords only to her greatest sons. Government bore all the funeral expenses. His faithfully-kept journals, during these seven years' wanderings, were published under the title of "The Last Journals of David Livingstone in Central Africa," in 1874, edited by his old friend, the Rev. Horace Waller.

In spite of his sufferings, and the many compulsory delays, Livingstone's discoveries during these last years were both extensive and of prime importance. No single African explorer has ever done so much for African geography as Livingstone during his thirty years' work. His travels covered one-third of the continent, extending from the Cape to near the equator, and from the Atlantic to the Indian Ocean. Livingstone was no hurried traveler; he did his journeys leisurely, carefully observing and recording all that was worthy of note, with rare geographical insight and the eye of a trained scientific observer, studying the ways of the people, eating their food, living in their huts, and sympathizing with their joys and sorrows. It was he who laid the tradition of his sojourn dies out among the native tribes, who, almost without exception, treated Livingstone as a superior being; his treatment of them was always tender, gentle, and gentlemanly. But the direct genius to geography and science are not the greatest results of Livingstone's journeys. He conceived, developed, and carried out to success a noble and manly-sided purpose, with an

Unflinching and Self-Sacrificing Energy and Courage

that entitle him to take rank among the great and strong, who, single-handed, have been able materially to influence human progress, and the advancement of knowledge. His example and his death have acted like an inspiration, alike Africa with an army of explorers and missionaries, and raising in Europe so powerful a feeling against the slave trade that it may be considered as having received its death-blow. Personally, Livingstone was a pure and tender-hearted man, full of humanity and sympathy, simple-minded as a child. The selfishness of his life, which he gave to some school children in Scotland, "Fear God, and work hard."

There are more murders committed than are ever published in the papers—murders committed by the tongue. The power of deadly poison is in it.—August Ladies' Home Journal.

in the region between Nyassa and Tanganyika. Leaving England in the middle of August, 1865, via Bombay, Livingstone arrived at Zanzibar on January 28th, 1866. He started for the interior of Africa on April 4th. His company consisted of thirteen sepoys, ten Johanna men, nine African boys from Nassick School, Bombay, and four boys from the Shire region. Besides camels, buffaloes, mules, and donkeys. This imposing outfit soon melted away to four or five boys. Rounding the south end of Lake Nyassa, Livingstone struck in a north-west direction, for the south end of Lake Tanganyika, over country much of which had not previously been explored. The Leangwa was crossed on December 16th, and on Christmas Day Livingstone lost his four goats, a loss which he felt very keenly, and the medicine chest was stolen in January, 1868. Fever came upon him, and, for a time, was his almost constant companion; this, hell," but was helpless, though his "first impulse was to pistol the murderers." The account of this scene, which he sent home, roused indignation in England to such a degree as to lead to determined and to a considerable extent, successful efforts to get the Sultan of Zanzibar to suppress the trade. In sickened disgust the weary traveler made his way back to Ujiji, which he reached on October 13th. Five days after his arrival in Ujiji he was cheered and inspired with new life, and completely set up again, as he said, by the timely arrival of Mr. H. M. Stanley, the richly-laden almoner of Mr. Gordon Bennett, of the New York Herald. Mr. Stanley's residence with Livingstone was almost the only bright episode of these last years. With Stanley, Livingstone explored the north end of Tanganyika, and proved conclusively that the Lusize runs into, not out of, it. In the end of the year the two started eastward for Unyan-

EVANGELINE C. BOOTH, Commissioner.

The Commissioner to the Front.

The Commissioner's health is now so satisfactorily improved that she has made definite arrangements for a series of tent meetings, to be held in Dufferin Grove early in September. This beautiful locality is now so well known that we could not think of a better spot to pitch a tent, and it need only be known that Miss Booth will be there to fill the largest tent we can secure. The idea of tent meetings was a happy thought of the Commissioner's, and the public will much prefer an open tent in a cool grove, to an indoor meeting during our fine September.

Harvest Festival.

The Annual Harvest Festival is quickly approaching, and it is well that our thoughts should engage themselves with such preparations as will find us ready to put the machinery in motion when the appointed time comes. The engineer of the train which bears us swiftly across the country, had to have some time to clean and oil his engine, as well as to take in a supply of coal and water, and have the engine fixed, and sufficient pressure of steam in the boiler to start when the schedule time calls for it. So, likewise, we should begin to review last year's effort, overhaul any deficiencies, oil up any parts where friction might occur, clean the dust and rust off every part, and begin firing, so as to have a good head of steam ready to begin the Harvest Festival effort.

The 36th Anniversary of Our World-Wide Army.

A MESSAGE FROM THE GENERAL.

Y DEAR COMRADES,—Thirty-six years ago, in blazing hot weather, similar to that I am now experiencing in Denmark, from whence I send this message, I commenced those operations in the East of London, which, of God's great mercy, and by His infinite blessing, have developed into the Salvation Army.

What a long succession of wonders this thirty-six years has been! Who could have foreseen what God was going to bring out of that seemingly small beginning? But His ways are not our ways. He still uses the worm to "thrash the mountains," and the insignificant instrumentalities of earth to confound and bring to naught the boasting agencies of hell, that He may have the greater glory, and that we may enjoy the greater reward.

GIVE GOD THE GLORY.

To what lofty position of honor and opportunity and influence He has brought this Army! We ought, in humility, to recognize His great favor, and we ought, with unceasing gratitude, to adore Him for what He has accomplished by us for the world's welfare. If we do not, we may expect the stones in every city where our flag is flying to cry out against us. Let us be careful to magnify His work and to give Him all the praise.

PROGRESS.

But what a fight it has been; truly we have had thirty-six years of solid, uninterrupted conflict, and of steady upward progress, and death. The same power urges us forward to-day. Every soldier in our ranks, possessed of the true Salvation spirit, cries out with the Master, "I must work while it is day, for the night cometh when no man can work."

The first campaigns of the war were severe. How severe, only those who were privileged to have a share in the poverty and persecutions, the trials and divisions of those years, can ever know.

Still they presented a picture of the holy strife that has followed with more or less severity in every part of the world where we have had the opportunities to fight, and that continues to this hour.

SEVEN LESSONS.

Those early days have their lessons and their memories. Both call upon us to be faithful to the principles and methods that were productive of such mighty results. Among other things

SPIRITUAL SPECIALS AT CHATHAM, ONT.

(Special)

Glorious start to our ten days' camp here. Eighteen seekers for pardon and cleansing. Magnificent Sunday afternoon meeting in the park, tremendous crowd, one soul saved at the drum-head, and six dollars offerings given. Sunday night, while at open-air in front of the "Garden House," caught in a thunder-storm. The proprietor invited us inside, where a glorious meeting was held and a good offering given. Marching on to victory. Pray for us that we may keep the flag flying.—Fugate and Manton.

Territorial News.

We are looking forward with small degree of pleasure to the start of our honored General. At an early date we hope to be in a position to give full particulars of his Canadian campaign, the dates of which are Oct. 23rd to 30th, inclusive.

Capt. Quant, of the Pacific Division, passed through Toronto, on his return from Sweden. The Captain had the pleasure of taking part in the General's recent meetings in Stockholm, which were wonderful. Over seven hundred Staff and Field Officers met the General in council. Capt. Quant takes charge of Lewiston, Mont.

The proposed Toronto Tent Campaign will take place in Dufferin Grove, Sept. 10th to 15th. We are looking forward to these meetings with great anticipation, and to hear once again our beloved Commissioner. A popular wedding will take place in connection with the above meetings.

An important Staff and Field change has just taken place in the North West Province. The Staff Officers affected are Ensign Burton, who has been appointed to Moose Jaw; Ensign Taylor, to Devil's Lake, and Ensign Dean, to Rat Portage.

Major Horn, in addition to his duties as Trade Secretary, will take temporary charge of the Financial Department until a permanent appointment has been made by the Commissioner.

Staff-Capt. Archibald visited St. Catharines last week-end. His lecture on the Army's Prison Work, on Saturday, was listened to by a splendid crowd. The meetings on Sunday were well attended, and resulted in a good case of conversions. Adjutant Goombes assisted at night.

A large Field change has just taken place in the Central Ontario Province affecting about forty officers.

The Harvest Festival Hand-Book is in course of preparation, and will be in the hands of the officers in the course of a week or so.

The Chief Secretary is enjoying a well-deserved two weeks' furlough among the Chippewa Indians. The Colonel, we are pleased to say, is enjoying comparatively good health.

The Harvest Festival dates for 1901 are from Sept. 21 to 24, inclusive.

BEST WAY OF USING LIGHT.

We do not always get the good of a thing by fixing our attention upon it. A candle is a useful thing for him who uses it to see his work, but if he uses it to look at the candle, he will find the candle has given us are not always of much use to those who occupy their minds with studying them. There have been careful students of the Bible, champions of its truth, who have shown little influence of its precepts. The Bible is a light to man's feet, and is most honored as well as best used when men walk by it. It is something to be obeyed more than talked about. It offers us, indeed, the inner light, which comes with the bare knowledge of the truth, when we see its harmony and its beauty. But it always calls us to go on to the greater joy in the truth which comes with obeying and living it. "If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them."

Whatever must be misrepresented in order to be ridiculed, is in fact not ridiculed; but the things so misrepresented for it. It is a satire on the things else, coupled with a lie on the part of the satirist, who, knowing the having the means of knowledge, truth, chooses to call one thing the name of another.

they say to the Salvationist of to-day:

I.

See to the personal realization of the salvation you proclaim.

II.

Go to the people who won't come to you.

III.

Publish a present, free, and full salvation, and do it with happiness and testimony and song and fire.

IV.

Compel a hearing from those who want to save.

V.

Be content with nothing short of salvation, and salvation on the spot.

VI.

Make your converts into soldiers, and set them to fight there and then. Be patient in your tribulations and glory in them.

VII.

Be satisfied with nothing short of ceaseless, restless, dauntless, victorious, warfare, and so glory God and the Lamb for evermore. Comrades, I rely on you.

THE PRESENT AND FUTURE.

The loved ones, who have fallen by your side, and who, already glorified, look down upon you from the battlements of the skies, expect that you will maintain, with increasing honor, the high character of this great contest. You will not disappoint them. The Saviour, the blessed Saviour Who Himself gave us the example of the soldier who could not only fight, but die at his post, gazing eagerly and anxiously at every turn of the conflict, expects you to continue with increasing energy and courage the warfare that has already shook the world and brought gladness to the hearts of multitudes.

Your General expects that you will celebrate this memorable occasion by a re-consecration of yourself, your families, your all, to a more perfect discipline, a more absorbing enthusiasm, and a more self-denying toil, and so do your part in rendering more glorious the annals of this Salvation war.

In life or death, in time or in eternity, reckon on me as your affectionate General.

William Booth

UNITED STATES.

A splendid property has been secured in the centre of Honolulu, in which to carry on our Rescue operations. Ensign Larabee and Lieut. Tyrholm have just arrived from the U. S. A. to take command. The need of Rescue Work in the Hawaiian Islands is too apparent.

Colonel Margetta is already making the rounds of his Province, going from corps to corps, and seeking to lighten the burdens of the officers who are in command.

The Penny Ice system is now in good working order, and the poor of Kansas City are getting ice supplied them at the rate of ten pounds for a penny.

There is rejoicing in the family circle of our American leaders in the birth of another little son to be trained for the Salvation war. The child gives every promise of health and vigor. The Consul is making very good progress, and will, with the blessing of God, soon be lending her inspiration at the battle's front.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The General continues his continental tour with increased energy and success. The Danish congress has been one of glorious surprises, all the more because the almost Indian temperature might have proved a formidable interference with the success of a campaign so especially dependent upon weather conditions, as one must be in the Danish capital in the heart of summer; but, instead, a larger crowd of soldiers than ever thronged the Temple for Council. The Concert Palace was twice filled on the Sunday, and in the evening to suffocation. In the beautiful King's Gardens the record-breaking crowd, numbered by thousands, stood around the open-air stand for two hours, watching with intense interest the grandest salvation battle ever fought within its gates. Altogether, 151 souls came to Christ during the prayer meetings, which were fought with remarkable spirit and perseverance. The General, though tired from these exhausting northern campaigns, rallied wonderfully, and threw himself into each succeeding battle with renewed enthusiasm and vigor. About three hundred officers assembled in council.

A very interesting book on the Training Home will shortly be issued from the press.

Commissioner Ralton is spending some time in Gorman-Switzerland, gathering together information to enable him to complete the life of Colonel Junker, which will be published simultaneously in England and Germany. The English edition will form a number of "The Red-Hot Library."

The South Shields I. Band have just completed a successful tour in Scotland. The total cost to the bandmen of the ten days' tour was £150. Nearly five hundred persons attended knee-drill in the open-air. Some amusing incidents took place in the prayer meetings. A man, sitting in the front seat of the gallery, in his eagerness to reach the penitential-form, climbed over the front, swung himself along the iron bars that supported the stove-pipe, and slid down the latter to the penitential form.

AUSTRALASIA.

A booklet is being issued in Melbourne by the Commandant descriptive of the Army's work throughout the Territory for the last five years. The title is to be, "Five Conquering Years."

The Commandant, in connection with his farewell visit to New Zealand, has had a very successful campaign, including important officers' councils, soul-saving battles, Social demonstrations, and limelight exhibitions.

The annual Social appeal has just been held throughout Australia. A special Social number of the Cry appeared, and a great effort was made. The results are not yet announced.

SOUTH AFRICA.

Brigadier Pearce, the new Chief Secretary for South Africa, has now reached the Cape and taken up his new duties.

Commissioner Kihney has received word from the authorities that a permit to visit the Rand is awaiting his return. He intends to visit Johannesburg at the first opportunity.

Adj. and Mrs. Joel and Captain Pembrey (all from South Africa) are on furlough in England.

INDIA.

Good news has been received from India. According to a telegram from Simla on July 10th, the monsoon, or the season's rains, has been strengthening over both sides of India, and there has been fully an inch of rain during the past two days, over nearly the whole of the North-Western and Central Provinces, Central India, and Rajputana. Elsewhere there have been showers, and the situation is greatly relieved. We feel sure that our readers will rejoice that the gloomy fears that have filled men's minds concerning a repetition of the dreadful famine, can now give place to hopes for a normal rainfall.

FINLAND.

A great many prominent Finlanders attended our congress in Helsinki for the purpose of hearing the French language used, although they had never been to the Army before. Lieut. Colonel Fornachon, from Stockholm, represented International Headquarters at the congress, and spoke in most of the meetings in French, which was translated into Swedish and Finnish. One of the meetings was carried on until after midnight, and till forty prisoners had been captured for that day.

SWEDEN.

Great advance has been made in Sweden during the five years' command of Commissioner and Mrs. Oilphant. No less than 140 new corps and outposts have been opened. The number of officers has also increased by about 220, and the Social operations continue to develop.

A translation in Swedish of the Chief of the Staff's "Servants of All" is published from the Stockholm Headquarters. The fame of the book has gone before it, and its appearance in Swedish is hailed with great delight.

HERE AND THERE.

Among the Burmese, a newly-married couple, to insure a happy life, exchange a mixture of tea leaves steeped in oil.

At a recent congress at Berlin, where eminent physicians and scientists met to discuss measures to limit the ravages of consumption, Dr. Brorardel, the most successful physician in the fight against the "white man's plague," stated that alcoholism is one of the most dangerous factors of the disease.

The Great Eastern Railway Company have erected an iron bridge at Wickham Market Station in a single day. Steam cranes, first of all, threw two girders of fifteen tons each across the metals, and the whole structure, weighing fifty tons, was finished within twenty-four hours.

CORPS' REPORTS

Preaching Salvation to the Orange-men.

Ottawa.—The S. A. is always ready for every opportunity that presents itself. On July 12th, there was a big Orange Excursion to Wakefield. A portion of the Army was also there, Adj. and Mrs. Kendall and Envoys Magee being present, the latter having made all arrangements. We held two rousing salvation meetings, the attraction being so great that we drew the crowd from all other amusements that were going on. We pray that God will richly bless the words that were spoken. On the Sunday following, two souls for salvation. Adjutant, with the band, was giving a helping hand to Capt. Slater, at Amprorip, while Mrs. Adj. Kendall led the forces here, storming the forts of darkness and capturing one soul for Jesus.—A. French, Sec.

An Old Officer Visits Us.

Riverside.—We are glad to report that Riverside is still alive. We have just had the Ibbotson Family with us, which drew a good crowd. We have also had a visit from Capt. W. H. The captain is one of our old officers, and everybody was glad to see him back again. Our dear Lieutenant has farewelled. We were very sorry to part with her. The farewell social on Tuesday night, with everybody present. We pray that God will go with the Lieutenant for her new appointment.—C. C. McCarney.

Not Betting the Grass Grow.

Fernie, B.C.—Hurrah for Fernie! Everything going with a swing, buildings going up all over, something like mushroom. A few souls have been saved since last report. Another visit from Major Hargrave resulted in splendid times. Come again, Major. S.D. almost forgotten. Target smashed a week ahead of time. Barracks and quarters secured: best of all, it's all paid for and furnished. Rent down to $1.50 per week. Two more local commissioners on Sunday.—Sergt. Major Ed. Homes and Secretary Joseph Smith—also another soldier enrolled. Ice-cream social on Saturday night splendid success. After paying $15 for the cream, cleared $21. Sunday night, the biggest list exposed from the platform. Good crowd. $8 collection in the open-air on Saturday night. Junior picnic on Wednesday a sweeping success, no less than ninety present; splendid times, all tired and dusty.—Maple.

After publishing the Yearly Balance Sheet, the Fernie Free Press makes the following kind comment: "The above statement would be gratifying to Capt. and Mrs. Lacey, and the other Salvationists. The showing is an exceedingly good one, and would do credit to any church in Fernie. It is doubtful if any other here can make as good a one. The barracks is very neat and comfortable, especially the living quarters upstairs. No little credit is due to Capt. Lacey for the splendid showing made. He has worked hard, and to his own labors, to a large extent, is due the vast amount of improvements lately made in and around the barracks."

Locals Holding the Fort.

Blenheim.—This corps at present is without officers, but the comrades are taking hold well and are rolling the old chariot along. Sunday we marched out twelve strong, and a good affair was held for thirty minutes. Who were the Specials? Why, Sergt. Garrod and Sec. Hiltz. Good inside meeting. Opening song by the Secretary. "We'll all shout Hallelujah!" Sergt. Garrod read the Word, taking for her subject, "Ye are the light of the world," which was very appropriate. How important it is that we let our light shine, and walk worthy of the vocation wherewith we are called. Adj. Coombs' Self-Denial notes on the District were much appreciated. Sergt. Garrod and McNicoll are pushing the City—Aldina Groom.

After Seven Years' Wandering.

Pictou.—On Sunday night God came very near and blessed our meeting. We were all glad to see Mrs. Pugh out again. One dear brother, who had been a wanderer from God for seven years, came and asked God to take him in, as he was tired of sin. This brother was, at one time, a Band Sergeant, but in an evil hour he fell from grace. May God keep him true, is our prayer. The reading of the General's letters in our soldiers' meetings is a great blessing to us.—Lillie Love.

Laboring in New Fields.

Burk's Falls.—Since last report the work has been going ahead, and a number of souls have been converted unto God. Capt. Matthews and Lieut. Meader have arrived to lead us on. We had good meetings all day on Sunday, with splendid crowds and good finances. Sunday night's meeting was a time of power and blessing, and at its close we rejoiced to see one young man decide for Christ. The converts are doing well. We are going to do our best for God in this place, and are sure we shall win, for we fight in the strength of our King.—ours to help, E. M.

A New Brass Band.

Hespler.—Although the weather is warm and crowds are small, we are determined to win for King Jesus. At the holiness meeting on Sunday morning God's power was felt, and praise God, one backslider started for the Kingdom. The band is practicing hard and big things are expected from them in the near future. God bless the band, and make them soul-winners.—E. B. D.

A Blessed Day.

Comfort Cove, Nfld.—Praise the Lord, we can report victory in this part of the battlefield. Sunday was a blessed day to our souls. God came very near and blessed us. At night we had the joy of seeing one precious soul come forward and give God his heart. Many others were deeply convicted. We are going in by the grace of God for greater victories.—Alfred Newhook, Lieut.

A Glorious Week-End.

Orillia.—We arrived at Orillia, O. K., and met with some stirring faces and happy soldiers. We had a glorious week-end, a wonderful time of blessing. Praise God! At the close of our Sunday meeting we rejoiced in seeing one backslider return to the fountain. We are going in to pull down the devil's kingdom by the grace of God.—Cadet-Lieut. M. J. Langridge.

They Go to the People.

Bracebridge.—We are still in the vineyard of the Lord laboring for His glory. It is very difficult to get the people into the barracks this warm weather, so we sometimes make ourselves known to the people at the homes, and have an hour or so of meeting with them. Our comrades often come in their working attire, and sometimes we have two solos at once—one in the saloon and the other in the ring—where we are praying silently. We believe we shall reap if we wait hot.—Capt. Marshall, for Ensign Hilde.

The Right Officers.

Lewiston.—Capt. Miller and Lieut. Buck are proving to be the right people in the right place. Sunday was a good day; large crowds, many were under conviction. We keep believing.—Wallace Sumpter.

Six Months' Hard Labor, and Four Times Through the Fire.

Botwoodville.—After six months' hard work our officers have farewelled. On Friday night one soul professed salvation. About fourteen months ago the fire consumed our barracks for the fourth time. This caused a cloud to overshadow the place, but God is with us, and we are going in for victory.—T. R.

Two Sisters Converted.

Bridgewater.—We had a special meeting on Wednesday night. The comrades from Lunenburg were present, led by the notable Capt. Armstrong. The meeting was very good. Mrs. Young's singing was enjoyed by the crowd present. Two sisters professed to get saved at the close of Sunday night's meeting. Everything is on the upgrade. A big time is expected on Thursday, when Brigadier Sharp will visit us.—Reporter.

Through a Drill.

North Bay.—We are rejoicing over another week of victory. Both in the open-air and indoor meetings our efforts have been signally owned and blessed of God. On Sunday the Lieutenant and myself farewelled. We parted with a rousing good kneed-rill, and throughout the day the presence of God was felt. On Monday, we had an ice-cream social. The Band of Love members also went through a drill.—Capt. Matthews.

The Enemy's Ranks Broken.

Old Perlican.—Since last report the ranks of the enemy have been broken, and five of his followers have come over on the Lord's side. The soldiers to have Ensign Sabine, one of our old officers, with us again. The meetings yesterday were times of power, and the inspiration with us, and God came very near. We dashed up with one precious soul crying to God for pardon, making four for the week. We give God all the glory and believe for greater victories than ever we have had before.—Rebello.

Inspired by the Councils.

Greenspond.—Since you last heard from us we have been to council and got wonderfully blessed. We brought some of the inspiration with us, and now are using it to bless others. During the last two weeks God has wonderfully helped us. We have rejoiced over twenty-two souls finding deliverance. A number of them were never saved before. We are going in to do our best to make them into blood-and-fire soldiers. With the aid of Capt. Brace, who has come to help us along, we are going to win.—Ensign Sparks, D.O.

Palms, Grapevines, and Banana Tree Decorations.

St. George's.—We have just had Adj. Graham, D.O., for the week-end. The open-air were attended by large crowds, and on Sunday God came very near and souls were convicted, but none would yield to the claims of God. Monday night we had a Hindoo meeting, and a large gathering it was. The platform was decorated with palm leaves, grape vines, and banana trees, and the officers and soldiers wore the Indian costume. The whole made a pretty sight for the on-looker to gaze upon. Lieut. Mowbray spoke on the S. A. work in India, and Capt. Clark, who is a speaker of no mean order, gave an account of the work the Army is doing in Japan. Adj. Graham then sang a solo in the French language, which delighted the company; she also gave part of her life-experience, and read from the Word of God. We are praying and believing that great things are going to be accomplished for the Kingdom in St. George's.—E. Astill, Corps Cadet.

The Barracks too Small.

Newtown, Nfld.—God is still with us. Sunday was a good day, being

Our Salmon Fisheries, Fraser River, B. C.

are all on fire for God and souls, and we are in for victory.—L. A. Simmons, Capt.

Encouraged by the General's Letters.

Goderich.—God is holding us much in our meetings. We hold our public meetings in the Park, which is in the centre of the town. We have very good crowds, and although we do not see many souls, we believe God is working. One man came to us recently and told us he had been saved through something that had been said in one of our meetings. Our soldiers are willing workers. The General's letters are very much appreciated by them, and they try in their lives daily to live out what is there told to them.—J. Crawford, Ensign.

A Friend of Lazarus.

Summerside, P.E.I.—In spite of the devil and the very warm weather we can report victory in our work. We have had a visit from Ensign Parker, with his lantern, which was enjoyed by all. Last Sunday we were pleased the first Sunday since the councils. We had good crowds all day. The subject of the Holiness meeting was, "One-sided godliness," by Captain Trask, on his way to Dotting Cove. Afternoon, "The Great Physician," by Lieut. Heddtich. Night, "A deceitful wife." A real heart-searching day. The hall was so packed at night that the building felt like one side it, over the bank and the other up the street. War Cry readers, please help us in building the new barracks.—A. Moner.

The Ottawa Band Takes a Trip. Amprorip.—Adj. Kendall, D.O., and the band, from Ottawa, visited our corps Saturday and Sunday, July 20th and 21st. We had a good time. The meetings were held in the Town Hall. The Army Band takes greatly in this town. The income amounted to $29 for the week-end! No one got saved, but surely will come from their visit. Lieut. Ludlow, from a group in H., has come to help push the war in Amprorip. We intend to do all we can for God and souls.—Capt. Slater.

HALIFAX NOTES.

EAST ONTARIO NOTES BY CAPT. POOLE.

Again I find myself at that noted corps, Campbellford. Amid the beating rays of heat, the gigantic iron horse puffs into the station. Capt. Crego awaits my arrival. After a few words of greeting he declares he is very busy, but by the time this is in print, we believe the Captain will have secured one of the best assistants in Central Ontario. G. B. M. is on the move here. Mrs. Chane leads the way as box-holder. Mrs. Morton second. Beatrice Fredrich, our Local Agent, has been sick, but is improving. We had a successful meeting here.

At Belleville you will find Miss Mary Ann Thompson, G. B. M. Agent, busy. Miss Thompson says it is a great work. She has been thinking that she will have to pay especially for the people who have a box. Do it! Miss Thompson's box has the most cash for September quarter. Quinte Hotel is second. Some new box-holders were secured here. Captain Weir is making a move. I noticed some improvement since last visit. Everyone was pleased with the lantern service, which was followed the next night by a red-hot boldness meeting.

I was at Deseronto for a week-end. I reached this place after a refreshing sail down the Bay of Quinte. Capt. Green met me on the dock. We had a meeting at the park, where a good crowd surrounded us. God took hold of the sinners and pleasure-seekers, who were led to think of their soul's eternal destination. We had meetings all day on Sunday. God's Spirit took hold of the people, and blessed our efforts. Sergt. Podgers stated his book shows the best attendance in the afternoon for a year. At night one backslider boldly rose up and came out, and God, Who declares to be married to the backslider, removed from his heart the burden of sin, and he went to his home a free man. To God we give the glory.

A Midsummer Revival.

St. John's L.—We believe in having good times here at No. 1, in hot or cold weather, and we know how to have them, too. We are now having our mid-summer revival, and souls are getting in the cleansing stream. On Sunday we had splendid meetings all day. At 7 o'clock we got orders from the King to open fire on the enemy's trenches, and fresh ammunition was served out. At 11 o'clock the Adjutant gave us an address on abiding in the Vine. He used, as an illustration, a tree, speaking of the different branches, and making it very clear. But the crowning thing was at night, when souls came and plunged in the life-giving stream. We finished up with an old-time vanguard. "No surrender," is our motto. —J. Wiseman, Capt.

VARIOUS KINDS OF READERS.

There are four sorts of readers. Hour-glass readers, whose reading runs in and out, and leaves nothing. Sponge readers, who imbibe all, but only give what they get out. Jelly-bag readers, who keep the dress and refuse, and let the pure run through. Diamond readers, who cast aside all that is worthless, and hold only the gems.—Coleridge.

Around the Halifax District with Brigadier Sharp.

By ADJT. DOWELL.

Orders came that our Provincial Officer, Brigadier Sharp, would visit the Halifax District, so notice was given to all the officers to prepare for his coming, and on Thursday I boarded the Flying Bluenose for Bridgewater. After a two hours' run, the conductor calls out "Kentville!" As the Brigadier is to come on here, I looked out the window and caught a sight of him. He was looking happier and healthier than ever, and his Man Friday (Capt. Fleming), if anything, looked thinner than ever, but was all the same. We arrived at Bridgewater at 5.15 p.m., and were met at the station by Capt. Miller and her Lieutenant, also Capt. McWilliams, of Lunenburg.

What a beautiful open-air we had at night. How the crowd stood and listened, and when we asked for a collection, they responded nobly. After a short time in the open-air, we marched to the barracks, where the Brigadier took hold in proper old-time style. We closed rejoicing over victory in our work.

The next evening we took the train for Lunenburg, which is a beautiful place. We had a good crowd about Lunenburg being a "hard go" but it did not look so to me, and Capt. McWilliams says it is not so. Out of seventeen soldiers on the roll fifteen were on the march. If some of our larger corps were to do this, we could not do it, it would be well indeed. We had a big open-air with a good collection and big crowds around the ring, listening to the singing of Capt. Fleming, and the beautiful address given by the Brigadier. The crowd followed us to the barracks and gave their best attention inside. We rejoiced over another grand meeting.

On Saturday morning we are off to Bridgewater again, and there take a team for a thirty-mile drive to Liverpool. It was a nice day, and the turnout was A. 1. The D. O. was driver, so something had to go, and go we did, arriving in Liverpool in less time than allowed for it. We met Capt. Tilley and Lieut. Askin, and in smiles, glad to see their P. O. and D. O. "Where are we to billet?" is the first inquiry. "We are told it is at a hotel. 'Are you able to meet the expenses?' says the Brigadier. We are told there are no expenses, and that satisfied our questioning. We are delighted with Liverpool. The people are kind. On Saturday night we had another good open-air, and then inside a regular crowd, and the people welcomed the truth given by the Brigadier! The general verdict was "It was a lovely meeting." The soldiers live a long distance from the barracks, and there is not much chance for a good collection. The next morning boldness meeting, but the Captain tells us there is a place about one and a-half miles from the town where the people wish the Army to hold meetings. So we started off, and upon our coming, in a some, glad friend who had chairs placed in a nice field; we were really in clover. Over 125 people gathered around to listen with the best attention, and gave two dollars and fifty cents in a few minutes in the collection.

The afternoon meeting was held in the barracks. We had a good crowd and a splendid meeting. But at night we completely packed the building. Five souls knelt at the Mercy Seat, and closed at 11 o'clock, tired, but rejoicing greatly.

After lunch we are off on the road, to catch an early train at Bridgewater. It was a lonely drive; nothing to break the monotony until the old horse gets tired and the wife gets out his legs on board of the rig. We have had kickers occasionally in the corps, and can stand them if they do not come too fast, but kickers on the road are not needed; but we got to Bridgewater in time for the train.

III.—THE GERMANS.

Karloman A. D. 876-880
Karl III., the Thick 880-887
Arnulf 887-893
Ludwig IV., the Child 893-912
Konrad I. 912-917
Heinrich I. 917-936

Karloman then became Emperor. He was also King of Bavaria and of Italy, and his next brother, Ludwig, was King of Saxony, where an old chronicler says that his life was useless alike to himself, the Church, and his country. He was the first of his line, the Emperor was given to the youngest brother, Karl III., called der Dicke, the Thick, who turned out not to be much wiser or more active. In his time the Northmen made worse inroads than ever, and when they came to the death of his cousin, called Louis the Stammerer, France likewise fell to him, he was quite unable to protect his people anywhere; and when the Count of Flanders forced him through the Northern fleet in the Seine, and came to beg his help, he could do nothing but offer a sum of money to buy them off. Everybody was weary of him and his reign was so squalid that an assembly was held at Tribur, on the Rhine, which declared him unfit to rule, and sent him into a monastery, where he died in two months. In 888, Arnulf, a son of Karloman, was made Emperor, but the French took the brave Count of Paris for their King, and France never formed part of the Empire again. Arnulf was a brave knight, and so beat off the Northmen that they never greatly molested Germany again, but he died young. In 899, when his son, Ludwig III., called the Child, was only six years old. He had a stormy reign, so tormented by the Magyars, who were trying to push beyond the Danube, that he died of grief, quite worn out, in 912.

As the Karling line was worn out, the German nobles chose another Frank, Konrad, Count of Franconia, for their king, and when, at the end of six years, he died, he bade them choose in his stead Count Heinrich of Saxony, who had been his enemy, and beat him in a great battle, but when he thought of the only man who had killed enough to defend Germany.

Heinrich was hawking on the Harz Mountains when the news of this advice was brought to him, and he is therefore called Heinrich the Fowler. He was wise and brave, and brought all the great dukedoms of Germany under his rule. These were, besides Saxony, Franconia, Swabia, Bavaria, and Lotharing. He was crowned with the Magyars in Hungary. Though he beat him in one battle, he was forced to make a truce for nine years, and pay them tribute in gold all the time. During all that time he was preparing the heart of his people, and training his nobles to fight on horseback, by games which some people say were the beginning of tournaments. The men of lower rank he kept in the habit of making the bowmen, and when they were thirteen years old, and to meet near the villages every three days to practice the use of arms. Besides, he saw that the great want was of walls, and he kept his people to build shelter from their enemies; so he built towns and walled them in, and commanded that one man out of every nine should live in a burg, as these fortresses were called. He began the history of Germany. The public meetings, fairs, markets, and fests were to take place within the towns, and justice was to be dealt out there. Stores were to be kept in case of a siege, and the country people were to send in a part of their produce to supply them, and in this way they were made the great gathering-places of the country.

When Heinrich thought the country quite ready to fight against the Magyars, he defied them, when next they sent for tribute, by giving them nothing but a wretched man's dog. The next year he met them at Keussberg. Then they lighted beacon fires on the hills to rouse their people, and a great multitude mustered to overwhelm the Germans; at this same place, Keussberg, Heinrich unfurled the banner of St. Michael, and rushed on the enemy, all his men crying out the Greek response, "Kyrie eleison." "Lord, have mercy," while the Magyars answered with wild shouts of "Hut! Hut!" but they were totally defeated, and driven back within Hungary. After this his troops hailed him as Emperor. He also conquered the Duke of Bohemia, and made him do homage to the King of Germany. He beat back the Wends, who lived on the marshes of the Baltic Sea, east of the Saxons, and were their great enemies; and he also tried to drive back the Danes. He tried to get these nations to become Christians, but he only succeeded with some of the Bohemians, where the good Duke Wenceslas was a Christian already, thanks to his mother, St. Ludmilla. He is the same of whom the pretty story is told that we have in the ballad of "Good King Wenceslas," though he was not really a king. He was murdered by his wicked brother, Boleslav, and the Christians were persecuted for some years. The good King Heinrich meant to go to Rome to be crowned Kaiser by the Pope, but he never could be spared long enough from home, and died in the year 936.

Progress at the Citadel—St. John I.

(By Our Special Correspondent, R. T.)

Adjt. McLean is still making things hum at the Citadel. He has been a little over a year in this city, and his arduous labors have been abundantly blessed. The Adjutant is equal to any emergency, and it is hard to tell what damage he might do. In the course of another year, to the devil's headquarters in this colony. As far as I can gather, No. 1. corps never stood better, as regards spiritually, numerically strength, and real fighting trim. The Adjutant is a tireless hustler, and his staff of soldiers have developed, under his training, those commendable qualities which constitute the "good soldier of Jesus Christ." The records of No. 1. show that

500 Souls Have Been Forward for Salvation during the past year, and that over 100 persons have been enrolled as Married at Sydney, on July 20th.

WEDDING BELLS RING AT SYDNEY.

Sydney has had its first Hallelujah Wedding, which was a good success. The ceremony was performed by Brigadier Sharp, the Glace Bay band also being well to the front and nobly assisted. God bless the band! Quite a large number of people gathered to witness the ceremony, which was enjoyed by everybody present, especially the bride and groom. After some music and song, the Brigadier called upon a few married people to speak. Of course they all thought much of a life the last, and we don't blame them for making the best of it, even if it does happen to be a poor bargain. There is nothing like putting the best side out. I noticed, Mr. Editor, that some of the speakers took the Brigadier took good care not to give the single folks a chance, but then, he is such a good, kind-hearted man, he wanted to keep the bride in the best of spirits. After the "I wills" were over, the Brigadier called upon the bride and groom to speak. The groom was quite composed considering the strain upon his nervous system. He said he believed God was with him in the step he had taken, and he was determined to follow Him all the way. The bride expressed her determination to do the will of God. May He bless them and make them a mighty ed to the glory of God. The Army, in many places, is not absolutely free from this danger. The responsibility of the Army is very great. God is using it for His glory and the good of souls, and while it continues to hold up Calvary's Cross, as the great central attraction of the nations, its success is assured.

A DOUBLE WEDDING AT ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND.

Major and Mrs. Smeeton waited the No. 1. corps, Thursday, July 14th, to conduct a double wedding, and I can assure the readers of the War Cry that it was a grand affair. Newfoundland is the place to have a good time at a wedding, and you can imagine using it for this purpose was just what it was a double one. It was just out of sight.

After a good march through the city, and all got settled down in the hall at the Citadel, commenced by Adjt. McLean giving the benediction. "Stand up for Jesus," which went with a swing, the band boys doing their best to put life and go into it; and, my! what a volley was fired when Major and Mrs. Smeeton, with Ensign Hiscock and Capt. Harris, with their best man and bridesmaid, came up one aisle, and Adjt. and Mrs. Turpin, with Sergt. E. Hutchings and Sister Mary Ungere, with their supporters, up the other. The Major then took hold, and the meeting went with a swing. After prayer, the Major made a few remarks and called upon Adjt. McLean to read the lesson, and give a few words of advice to the happy four.

Sergt. Hutchings and Sister Mary Ungere were the first to stand forward. After their "I wills" were said, the Major pronounced them man and wife. Each had a few words, then Sergt. Major Tuff was called upon to say a few words on behalf of the men. He gave a very good talk and advised the ones getting married to put Christ first in all their undertakings, assuring them that in so doing they would always have God's blessing. Mrs. Adjt. McLean next had a few words on behalf of the women, and she gave some real good advice to women in general, which was enjoyed very much. Mrs. Smeeton sang us a beautiful solo, "Evermore Thine," which went fine.

The Major then proceeded to dispose of the second stage of the program by calling on Ensign Hiscock and Capt. Harris to stand forth, reminding them that they had been very patiently waiting for their turn, and were sure enough they seemed very anxious to have the matter over. The ceremony was soon performed and the matter was settled, amidst volleys of love from the bride and groom. The happy couple were then advised to enjoy it as much as if they were advising married themselves. No doubt many were looking forward to their happy future. Adjt. Turpin gave a nice little speech, telling us of his past life, and how he had been married a few months of married life, and how the folks who had just been married would enjoy it as much as he had done. The Adjutant was all smiles and the people looked as if they believed in the "I wills" of the groom. He intended to be true to God and to the Army, and trusted that their life together would be the means of doing greater good in the Army than ever before. Mrs. Hiscock was thankful that she was saved and God had her for His service, and she intended to live and die in the battle.

The Major concluded by giving an interesting address, and the meeting was brought to a close by giving every sinner in the house a chance to be united with Christ.

Ensign and Mrs. Hiscock and Sergt. and Mrs. Hutchings have the good wishes of all St. John's for a most mighty blessing in the future.—J. S. M.

Arab in the Lead—Currell Maintains Her Unapproachable Position—Another Light Has Risen in the Pacific.

The absence of the Eastern list was explained in our last issue. Arab has an easy time winning, but keeps the lead, anyway, and that deserves credit. The other Provinces show the effect of the heat somewhat, although they bear up well in a way.

Lieut. Currell, however, does not allow rain or heat, wind or calm, to interfere with her sales. She sold 365 copies last week, and there is no one who disputes the Territorial Championship, which she deserves.

Arab, however, has two fine hustlers in Lieut. Erb (261) and Capt. Copeman (230), of whom we heard respectively. Currell is at Hamilton, and you see Hamilton does not want London or Brantford to beat her. See!

A new hustler of repute has turned up in the Pacific Province. His name is Capt. Hurst, and he has sold 263 copies. Well done! Try again. Victoria once used to sell 600 copies when Ziebarth did the booming. Can't you challenge Lieut. Currell, Capt. Hurst? Try a race for ten weeks.

MEDICINAL USE OF COLD WATER.

"I am beginning to think that cold water is more beneficial than drugs," a friend said to me recently. "When I am sleepless, as I frequently am, I wet a cloth with cold water and hold it alternately at the back of my neck and the pit of my stomach, on my wrists and across my forehead. This lowers my temperature and leaves me so refreshed that I am usually sure of falling asleep very soon after."

"For constipation, I know of no better remedy than a couple of glasses of cold water taken upon retiring, and also the first thing in the morning."

Rheumatism is also said to flee from a persistent deluging of the system with this simple fluid. A gallon of water should be taken daily, two quarts in the morning before breakfast, and the other two between meals during the day. Of course, this quantity cannot be taken at first, but must be attained gradually. Neither must it be boiled down as one gulps a glass of soda, but taken slowly, with intervals of rest.

"A chronic case came to my notice recently. The lady had been afflicted for a number of years. Her finger-joints were crooked and swollen, and she had been a great sufferer. Her physician prescribed a gallon of water daily. She explicitly followed the directions given, until now she tells me she has been entirely free from pain for several years, and her fingers have attained nearly their original shape. Another patient was cured of a very severe attack of rheumatism in four weeks, by simply drinking cold water, and carefully regulating her diet, which consisted mostly in abstaining from sweets and red-blooded meat, beef, in particular."

Rheumatism, constipation, and sleeplessness are three formidable foes. If nature's beverage can successfully grapple with them, is it not well to avoid drugs, and to cleanse the system with pure water, free to all, and unfailing in its supply?

An excellent gargle for sore throat is listerine water, in the proportion of one-third listerine to two-thirds water. It is very pleasant to the taste, purifies the breath, and is a good disinfectant. Often troublesome irritation will attack the throat, caused sometimes by a deranged stomach, often the forerunner of a serious cold. This listerine gargle, if taken in season, will prevent the cold from materializing to any great extent. It is an antiseptic which is rarely used by the medical fraternity.—Mrs. Helen M. Richards, in N. Y. Observer.

Death sets the solitary in families. We are here like travelers plodding through the night and the storm, and then crossing the threshold into the great hall full of friends.—Maclaren.

To disinfect bed-linen, clothing, towels, and everything that has been about the patient, place them in a solution made by dissolving sulphate of zinc and common salt in the proportion of four ounces of each to a gallon of hot water.

To disinfect drains, cesspools, sewers, cellars, yards, etc., wash them with a solution made by dissolving sulphate of iron, called coppers, in hot water, in the proportion of one and a-half pounds of coppers to the gallon. In the sick-room fresh air is the best disinfectant.

The discharges from the patient are received in a vessel containing the coppers solution, or should be immediately covered with it. The discharges likely to cause the disease in others are: In typhoid fever, the evacuations of the bowels; in cholera, the evacuations and the vomited matter; in diphtheria, the expectoration. The expectoration of those who are consumptive should be carefully collected in paper boxes, which are made for the purpose, and should be burned before it has an opportunity to dry.

To Disinfect an Unoccupied Room.—Close it as tightly as possible, stopping up the cracks and key-holes. For a room ten feet square, use two pounds of roll sulphur. Place the sulphur in a pan set on a brick placed in a tub, with a little water in the bottom. Heavy blankets, bedding, clothes, and other articles too bulky to be treated with the zinc solution, are opened, and exposed to the fumes of the sulphur. Set the sulphur on fire, and keep the room closed for twenty-four hours.

The above is the method of procedure after a room has been occupied by a person with an infectious or contagious disease.

DIET OF THE SICK.

The kind and amount of food must be determined by the physician, but whatever is ordered should be served in the most tempting manner possible, and that implies neatness and avoidance of excessively quantities that take away the patient's appetite.

As soon as the meal is over, every vestige of food should be cleared away.

Milk and eggs are digestible and valuable foods. The flesh of young animals, veal for instance, is not easily digested, while beef and mutton are usually more easily digested than starchy foods, like bread and potatoes. Of course, pork, corned beef, beans, cabbage, and carrots are out of the question.

Beef Tea.—Remove all the fat from a piece of beef, preferably rump steak, cut the meat into small, dice-like squares, put them into a saucepan and add a pint of cold water to each pound of meat. Let the saucepan stand two hours in a warm place, where it will not come to a boil, the back of the range, for instance, and at the end of that time, skim off any fat that is floating, but do not remove the brown scum. Now boil for twenty minutes, pass through a coarse colander (not a strainer), or simply pour off the liquid, holding the pieces of meat in with a spoon. Then season with salt and pepper, a little more than for the taste of a well person, and serve hot, a cupful at a time.

This tea should look something like chocolate. The brown particles floating thickly in it are coagulated albumen, and the most valuable portion for food. If they are strained off, you have little more than a solution of salts and flavoring extracts—good stimulant, but poor food. The tea is made pleasant to the taste by boiling, and can be made more so by stirring in, while boiling, a teaspoonful of flour or arrowroot, previously mixed with cold water.

Beef Juice is made by cutting up and squeezing, in a lemon squeezer, or beef juice, pieces of beef previously broiled two minutes.

Oat Meal and Indian Meal Gruel.—Stir two tablespoonfuls of either, previously mixed with cold water, into a pint of boiling water, and boil an hour. Then stir and add salt.

POULTICES.

Poultices are made of different substances, according to the effect desired. For soothing purposes, and to allay inflammation, flax or linseed meal and bread are commonly used, while if we require a counter-irritant mustard is employed.

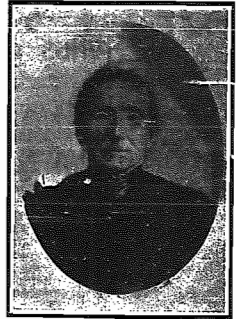

Flaxseed Poultice.—To a little hot water placed in a vessel, previously scalded out to insure everything being hot, flaxseed meal is added gradually and stirred in until a well-mixed, soft, and hot mass is produced of the consistency of very thick paste. This is spread in a thin layer on linen or thick muslin, and a piece of thin material (cheese cloth or an old linen handkerchief) laid over it, the edges being folded under on to the back of the poultice.

The object of employing some thin material between the skin and the poultice is to prevent the flaxseed from sticking to the skin. The poultice must be applied hot, and kept moist by cotton batting, flannel, oiled silk or mackintosh, and must be well-secured in its place.

These poultices are changed once in four or five hours, the old one not being removed until the fresh one is ready to put on immediately.

Bread Poultice.—The bread poultice is made in the same way, using crumbs of stale bread instead of flaxseed meal. By using hot milk instead of water the bread and milk poultice is made. They are applied and managed exactly the same as the flaxseed.

Mustard Poultice or Plaster.—A mustard poultice is made by mixing ground mustard with warm water to a thin paste, which is spread thinly on a piece of cloth or brown paper, and after having a piece of thin material spread over it, it is applied to the skin and kept on until the skin is well reddened, but not blistered. This plaster is usually far too strong to get the best effects. It is better to use one part of mustard to four of flour, Indian meal, flaxseed, oat meal, or bran, may be substituted for the flour. Their only object is to dilute the mustard.

If the poultice is for a child, six to eight times as much flour as mustard should be used.

Boiling or very hot water must not be used to make a mustard poultice, as the heat drives off the volatile oil to which the mustard owes its value as an irritant.

A New Convert 79 Years of Age.

Bonavista.—After being away from the battle one year through sickness, I am pleased to be once more in the thick of the fight. I received my appointment to Bonavista with Adj. Boggs, and we are having good times. Our latest convert in an old lady 79 years of age. Our faith is high for victory. I had the privilege of attending the councils, which were a great blessing to me.—R. Sainsbury, Capt.

Inspired by Corps Reports.

Moose Jaw.—Seeing reports from other corps and the progress they are making stirs up a greater desire and ambition within us to push on the work of God. The presence of God has been wonderfully manifested in our midst during the past few months, and souls have been won for the Kingdom. Lieut. A. Haugen, who has been stationed with us, has farwelled, and Capt. M. Meyers farwelled on the 27th Inst. We shall miss them both, but we wish them God's richest blessing, wherever God may see fit to send them, and pray that they may be the means of inspiration and blessing to others.—May Orr.

ORIGINAL SONGS BY ENSIGN PERRY, T. F. S., CENTRAL ONTARIO PROVINCE.

Ensign Arthur C. Perry hails from Nova Scotia, and has been an officer for over ten years, eight of which were spent in the Eastern Province. During this time the nature of his appointments has varied—a long list of corps where he worked, interspersed with calls to Special Work being on record. For five years now has Ensign Perry been working in his present capacity—that of Financial Special, holding this position in the Eastern Province, the North-West, and now in Central Ontario. He is almost a constant traveler, in fact, makes his home on the field. The Ensign enjoys his work, and is constantly planning for its success. His special lectures have gained for him notoriety, and have been found attractive and interesting. His latest is a descriptive address on Japan and the Salvation Army.

HOLINESS.

Tune.—Scatter seeds of kindness (B. J. 329).

Whiter than the driven snow—
flakes,
Purer than the ocean foam,
Like as linen, pure and spotless,
Has my heart by blood become.
Every thought and every purpose
Every act and every way,
Now in accord, blessed Master,
With Thy will for me to-day.

Chorus.

I know the blood has cleansed me.
I know the blood has cleansed me.
I know the blood has cleansed me.
My heart is pure within.

Now the cleansing current flowing,
Makes my heart all pure within.
Every secret crevice cleansing
From the last remains of sin.
And the fire is brightly burning
On the altar of my heart;
Heavenward turned is every yearning,
Sanctified is every part.

In the world, but yet not of it,
Empty is its glittering show,
I am living now above it,
For Christ crucified I know.
I'm determined now to further
Christ's own cause while here I stay,
Longing to be a soul-winner,
Till I'm called from earth away.

TRUST AND GUIDANCE.

Tune.—He's the Lily of the Valley (B. J. 7).

Dear Jesus, I have found Thee to be my Pilot true,
My Comfort and my Guiding
Star in life,

I know that Thou wilt guide me life's onward journey through,
'Midst all the joy, the sorrow, and
the strife,
In dangers on 't'll hear me in,
I calm be near as well,
Thy presence shall my pathway
brighten here;
If storms should sweep around me,
and billows near me rise,
Then with Thee I shall never know
a fear.

Chorus.

Thou wilt be near to help me, to guide
me all through life,
I dare not doubt Thy love and power
so strong;
I'll trust Thee to the fullest, in calm
as well as strife,
Thou'lt be my Light, my Portion,
and my Song.

If quiet hours and lonely should sometimes be my lot,
And dark and gloomy seem my onward way,
I'll press on through the darkness,
knowing that I ought,
And trust Thee in the night as well
as day,
Then when the clouds are rifted, and there appears to view
The sunlight of Thy countenance,
O Lord,
My heart shall rise in gladness to know I pressed right through,
While holding to the promise of Thy word.

All power to Thee is given, in heaven
and in earth,
Before Thee no opposing force can stand,
Thou art my loving Saviour, my everlasting King,
I'll follow at Thy conquering command,
And when the battle's over, the victory has been won,
If I can only lay down at Thy feet
My glittering crown of conquest, and hear Thy glad "Well done!"
My happiness will then be made complete.

SOLO.

THE OLD HAVE SORROW.

(To be sung slowly, with feeling.)
Tune.—The ship that never returned.
To a railway depot, in a far-off
city,
A woman pressed her way;
She was dressed in black, was old
and lonely,
On her heart deep sorrow lay,
As she reached the place where the crowd had gathered,
She was jostled by the throng,
For they each, intent on separate business,
To the ticket gate moved on.

Chorus.

Ah, the old have sorrow! Yes, the old have sorrow,
But the young and the gay pass by;
They little think that, perchance, on the morrow,
They may utter grief's sad cry.

Now the little woman at length endeavored
With the crowd through the gate to pass,
But the man on duty demanded her
ticket,
Were it first or second-class.
"I'm not going away," said the little
woman,
"A ticket I did not buy."
"Then you can't go through; it's against the orders."
Was the gate man's firm reply.

"Ah, sir," said she, "my son is coming."
"Can't help it," was the answer made;
"Stay here where you are, and soon he'll meet you."
Came the answer so cold and staid.

"If he only would, sir," and the voice trembled
As the words from her lips did come,
"But he died last week in a far-off
city,
In his coffin they are bringing him home."
"He was the only one I had —" "Oh, thank you."
Now the gate was open wide,
For touched was the heart of the man
at its entrance,
As he heard how her son had died.
Now a friendly hand assisted the
woman,
On whose heart deep sorrow lay;
Soon in the crowd she was lost to vision,
As she passed on her eager way.

SALVATION.

DRIFTING ONWARD.

Tune.—Have you any room for Jesus?
(B. J. 16).

Sinner, you are drifting onward,
Over the moving sea of life,
Daily, hourly, carried forward
With its turmoil and its strife.

Chorus.

O'er the waters rings the message,
Jesus will your frail barque guide;
If you let Him be your Pilot
You are safe whatever bestride.

Ah, the world has such attractions,
Towards its galety you are turned,
Eagerly seeking satisfaction,
While the things of God you've spurned.

Yes, you're ever kept in motion,
Tossed about by changing winds,
And the billows' wild commotion
Cause you care—a sorrow brings.

Ah, your barque that long has drifted,
Soon eternity's shore will reach,
Then by surging billows lifted,
Will be wrecked upon its beach.

2nd Chorus.

Then no more will ring the message
That you heard on life's rough sea,
For no help will then be given,
In that dark eternity.

COME TO THE SAVIOUR.

Tune.—Come in the twilight.

Come to the Saviour, come, come to-day,
Seek His forgiveness, come while you may;
He will receive you, make you His own,
Oh, weary hearted, come.

Chorus.

He will pardon all the guilty past,
In His sunlight you may ever bask;
Truly His favor is life to all,
On sinner, on Him call.

Come to the Saviour, for you He waits,
Longing to open to you the gates
That lead to pardon, purity, and home.
Oh, sin-sick soul, now come.

Come to the Saviour, time passes by,
Jesus entreals you now to draw nigh;
He do not longer in evil roam,
But, wandering soul, now come.

Come to the Saviour while He is near,
He lives to help you; oh, do not fear;
Ere death o'ertakes you and you go down,
Oh, trembling soul, now come.

SUNDAY NIGHT SOLO.

Tune.—The waters of Jordan may roll

When the lamp of life flickers,
about to go out,
And friends say their last goodbye,
Will your spirit to heaven triumphantly shout,
Or will you in darkness die?

Chorus.

For death's river you surely must cross,

Eternity's shore rise to view,
Say, will you then suffer all loss,
Or will it be gain to you?
The past, with its memories, may be quite uncertain,
And bring to your mind misspent
years;
But why they've been wasted you
scarcely will solve,
But think of it only with tears.
The tears of a death-bed can't undo
the past,
Nor close the sharp pang of regret,
Your mind you will find when you're sinking fast,
Past sin will then fail to forget.
Life is real and earnest, and swift passing by,
To time you will soon bid adieu;
Then live so you'll hear the Saviour's
"Well done,"
When life's journey here will be through.

PRAYER MEETING CHORUSES.

Tune.—Oh, yes, there's salvation for you.

Oh, come to the Cross, there is room!
Oh, come to the Cross, there is room!
He is waiting just now to receive you,
Oh, come to the Cross, there is room!

Tune.—The old, old story is true.

Oh, come to Jesus just now,
Oh, come to Jesus just now,
For He will receive you and make you
His own,
Oh, come to Jesus just now.

Tune.—You've carried your burden.

You've squired your Saviour,
You've squired His call,
Then come in contrition,
Before Him now fall;
Acknowledge your sin, and
Believe in His word,
Forsake all the past and
Your prayer will be heard.

Tune.—There'll be no more sorrow
there.

I'll seek Thy pardon now,
I'll seek Thy pardon now,
I do believe Thou wilt receive,
I'll seek Thy pardon now.

Tune.—Oh, where is my boy to-night?

Oh, will he be saved to-night?
Oh, will he be saved to-night?
The Saviour pleads, oh, will you not heed,
And give Him your heart to-night?

Tune.—There's a work for you and a work for me.

There's a pardon free, yes, a pardon
free,
Waiting, poor sinner, just now for
thee,
There's a pardon free, yes, a pardon
free,
Waiting, poor sinner, just now for
thee.
